2. The camp was set up in May 1954 by members of an engineer regiment in Bratislava and was used for summer training by the regiment. It is called the Kormorany Training Camp. Although the Ministry of National Defense declared the site of the camp unsuitable because of the marshy nature of the ground, it nevertheless had to be set up because of the pressure of the Soviet colonel who was military adviser to the engineer regiment. The camp commandant was Major Jergens (fnu).
